We're doubly honored. Motor Trend proclaimed the 1994 Dodge Ram "a new standard by which full-size pickups will be judged." And honored it as their "Truck of the Year."

Then, not to be outdone, Petersen's 4-Wheel & Off-Road named our new pickup the "4x4 of the Year." And called it a "benchmark in the evolution of 4WD trucks." We couldn't agree more.

After all, Dodge Magnum V-6,* V-8 and Cummins Turbo Diesel engines wrote the book on power. And with our new available Magnum V-10, they're getting two cylinders better. To the tune of 450 lb ft of torque and 300 horsepower.

Ram makes a powerful statement when it comes to safety, too. With a standard driver's airbag† and available four-wheel anti-lock brakes. Along with high-strength steel door beams and a dozen other safety features.

There's no rule that says trucks have to ride like trucks. That's why we gave our new Dodge Ram a new frame and improved suspension travel. We just wouldn't hear of making a noisy pickup, either. Fact is, we worked very hard to make our new Ram a standard for quietness.

And while Dodge pickups have always been workhorses, now they're a convenient place to conduct business too. With an available fold-down front seat console. And an ingenious optional storage system behind the seats.

Here's one more point to consider: The new Dodge Ram also has more maximum payload than other full-size pickups. Not to mention the terrific amount of weight it carries with the editors of Motor Trend and Petersen's 4 Wheel & Off-Road.

THE JACK OF ALL BACKS

By DOUG MILLER

JOHNNY JOHNSON has few regrets about the path he has followed since entering the NFL in 1990 as a seventh round pick of the Phoenix Cardinals.

Except for what he deems as the one glaring omission on his resume. The NFL Playoffs, Championship game, and ultimately the Super Bowl.

His team-first, me-second attitude, coupled with his extraordinary talents and skills, not only earned him 1993 team MVP honors, but also could help push the Jets into the playoffs and beyond.

"Without trying to sound conceded and arrogant, I've accomplished quite a bit in my four years in the NFL," the 6'3, 220 pound running back said. "I've played in the Pro Bowl, made all-rookie and led two different teams in rushing. But that's not good enough for me.

"Almost all the great players in this league's history have made their mark in the playoffs. I want to make my mark on the same playing fields that they did.

"Our team's goal this year is to start out strong and just get stronger as we go through the season. I think we can be a factor in the AFC, and beyond. I don't make predictions, I'll leave that to the experts, but I like the way our coaches have put together a team that can compete every week."

The words may seem strong but one would expect nothing less from one of the NFL's most powerful offensive weapons.

"Johnny is one of the most unique talents in the league. He's built like a lot of fullbacks around the league, but has the same quickness and agility that many of the premier tailbacks have," said new offensive coordinator Ray Sherman. "He has the vision and field awareness to find the creases, speed to get into them and then the ability to break tackles once the holes close.

"There aren't many guys like JJ, that's for sure," concluded Sherman.

Buffalo Bills Pro Bowl linebacker Darryl Talley had his share of Johnson in two games last year and was left shaking his head in amazement at Johnson following both games.

"In my opinion, Johnny Johnson's a hell of a back. Going north and south, you don't see any tougher."

Johnson lets the compliments roll off of him like the Pacific Ocean waves that he frequently body surfs in the offseason.

"I'm like anyone else, I appreciate it when people say nice things about me. But I know that I still have to produce. I try not to let good or bad comments affect me either way," he said.

Johnson's demeanor was the first thing that 14-year veteran free safety Ronnie Lott noticed when training camp started last season.

"He brings to the table the one ingredient which is so crucial to a team's success," Lott said, "It's the thing which I think separates outstanding football players from average ones. Heart.

"When you combine his heart with his talent, you have a combination that is highly explosive on a football field," said Lott.

Quarterback Boomer Esiason is also equally high in his praise for Johnson. "Johnny is a very unassuming guy. He doesn't seem to have a big ego. He's just an all-around team player," said Esiason. "He was the single best addition to our club last year. He's been a diamond for us."

It is no wonder then that when Pete Carroll was named the Jets' head coach on January 7, one of the first question he encountered was about the direction his offense would take.

Without batting an eye, the rookie coach said, "He (Johnny Johnson) is going to be our focal point. I really like what Johnny Johnson brings to the Jets. We are going to wear him out next year."

That is fine by Johnson, who last year proved his durability and toughness by playing in games late in the season with cracked ribs and dislocated fingers.

"That was music to my ears. I think that if you ask most featured running backs they will tell you that the more they touch the ball, the easier the game comes to them," Johnson said. "I feel the same way."

Johnson proved that last season when he rushed for a career high 155 yards while carrying the ball 32 times in a Jets' victory over the Washington Redskins. Those who witnessed the game watched as Johnson followed the blocks of his offensive linemen and controlled the clock for a staggering 41 minutes.

"Going north and south, you don't see any tougher." — Darryl Talley

Just when it seems like Johnson will tire the defenses out with his powerful and elusive style of running, suddenly he will release out of the backfield and showcase another one of his weapons — his outstanding receiving skills.

"What you get with Johnny is a very multi-talented package. He's a creative runner who knows when it's time to wrap up the ball and barrel for the last few yards," said running backs coach Johnny Roland.

"Plus he adds so much with his receiving abilities. He's a possession-type receiver who excels at picking up yards after the catch. I think he and Boomer have really developed a relationship where they depend on each other in key situations."

"JJ provides our offense the ability to do so many different things because he can do so much," said Sherman. "We can line him up as a single back, in the I, in the wing-slot and as a wide receiver. That puts an unbelievable amount of pressure on defenses, which in turn will create outstanding opportunities for our offense."

Yet that pressure doesn't seem to faze the easy-going California Kid.

"It's all about having fun on the football field," he said. "That's why we play this game, and of course the desire to win, get into the playoffs and make some noise."

WORKING FOR RESPECT

By KEN ILCHUK

Back in 1989, no one at the Meadowlands heard Brian Washington's name on Sunday afternoons. No one saw him pummeling opposing receivers, or running back interceptions. He wasn't on the field.

Today, it's hard to talk about the Jets defense without starting with Brian Washington and the Jets secondary. In four seasons as the starting strong safety, Washington has been among the team leaders in nearly every defensive category amassing 393 tackles, 16 interceptions (two returned for touchdowns) and 40 passes defensed. He has started 53 consecutive games and has not missed a start in three seasons, while leading the Jets in interceptions in 1992 and 1993.

All of this earned him the team MVP award in 1992 and 1st Team All-Pro honors from Pro Football Weekly in 1993. But most importantly, he earned the respect of his teammates.

"That has been very important to me," says Washington. "I'm not so concerned about being respected by my opponents. It's easy to impress your opponent with one good game. But your teammates are the guys who see you every day. They see you in the classroom, in the weight room and on the practice field. So to be named MVP by your teammates is a big honor. They see everything you do, and then decide that you're the guy they want to be in the trenches with."

Washington, who grew up in Richmond, VA and played his college football at Nebraska, is the first to tell you that his success has been the result of a lot of hard work. In 1989 though, the idea of working for his success was a new experience for him. He decided to leave the game.

"In 1989 I got a real slap of reality," Washington explains. "Up until then things had come very easy for me on the football field. I made the Nebraska varsity as a freshman and was All-Big 8 as a sophomore. Then I was a starter as a rookie in the NFL with a division champion team (Cleveland). So when I was demoted at the beginning of the 1989 season, it hit me hard and I asked to be waived."

He was picked up immediately by the Jets but after only one day of practice he decided to give up football. The Jets wisely placed him on the reserve/left squad list. As it turns out, that one year away from the game may have been one of the most important years of his career, and one that Washington thinks helped make him the player he is today.

"I had to regroup, get away from football and lead a normal life for awhile," he explains. "I learned a lot about myself that year. I realized that I had been blessed with a great deal of athletic ability, and I wasn't making the most of that talent.

"I realized for the first time that everything was not always going to be peaches and cream. It was going to be hard sometimes, and no matter how good I was, I could always be better," he continued. "I decided when I came back that I was going to work hard and be the most consistent player I could be, week in and week out. A lot of guys have athletic ability, but they don't work. To me, that's the difference between being good and being great. You have to give your all."

"Since I have been here I have never known Brian Washington to give anything less than 100 percent," says Jets defensive coordinator Greg Robinson. "He's always done everything we've asked of him. He is a complete football player, the complete package. He's very physical, he has a lot of range and he's very intelligent on the field. He has a great awareness for the game. We're looking forward to a banner year from Brian."

Washington is looking for another big year himself, but he's careful not to pin himself down to certain goals.

"I'm not a goal-setter," he says. "I think when you set goals and achieve them, you become complacent. That's what got me in trouble early in my career. Now, I'm convinced that whatever I'm doing, I can do better.

"If there is a goal, it's to be in the best physical shape I can be in," he continues. "That's something I can control and it's what will enable me to make the most of my opportunities on the field."

If there is one thing that is key in Washington's approach to the game, it is taking advantage of opportunities and making the most of his time as a professional athlete.

"It all goes back to working hard, not resting on your ability alone," he explains. "Don't intercept the pass and fall down. Intercept the pass and try to run it back for a touchdown. I want to be 'the guy.' I believe in my ability to make the big play, and there are 10 other guys on the field who are relying on me to make the play when the opportunity arises."

Jet newcomers and veterans alike have taken notice of Washington's play, as have newcoming veterans. Even those who are on their way to the Hall of Fame.

"Brian is already a great player," says Jet free safety Ronnie Lott. "I had seen him play over the past few years, and when I got here last year he raised his game another level. And he had been the MVP the year before. He knows what he can do. He knows he's one of the top safeties in the league. We need more of his kind of performance on the field."

Washington has been a consistent performer over the past four seasons, but he has also made the big play. The biggest may have come in December of 1992, when he picked off a Jim Kelly pass in the fourth quarter and returned it 23 yards for the winning touchdown in the Jets' emotional win at Buffalo, just a week after the paralyzing injury to teammate Dennis Byrd.

In 1993 he returned an interception 62 yards for a touchdown against the Raiders. At New England, he had a key fumble recovery at the Jets 10-yard line in the closing minutes to preserve the win. But Washington is hoping that he has impacted his team in other ways as well.

"To me, it's important to always be ready when they call your number. But hopefully that has an affect on my teammates. As important as it is to make plays, it's just as important to try and raise the level of play of your teammates. Hopefully, what I do will rub off and serve as an example to other players. That will help make us a successful team and help us get to the next level."

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

LEON HESS, Chairman of the Board

In December of 1992, with the dawn of unrestricted free agency fast approaching, Leon Hess assured Dick Steinberg that the Jets would be active in the NFL's new free agent market, and proved to be a man of his word. In just two years the Jets have added a wide range of veteran talent via free agency including future Hall of Famers Ronnie Lott and Art Monk. The team also orchestrated two major trades prior to the 1993 season that brought another two Pro Bowlers to New York in QB Boomer Esiason and 1993 team MVP Johnny Johnson.

At the end of the 1989 season Hess made the bold decision to change the direction of the club and began a search for the best "football" man to run the club. In December, 1989 he named Steinberg to the post of vice president and general manager. By 1991 the Jets had made a return to the playoffs, their first post season appearance since 1986. Now coming off an 8-8 season, a four-game improvement over 1992, and with a new coaching staff in place headed by Pete Carroll, the Jets appear ready to take the next step.

Hess has continuously sought the finest football facilities for both the players and the fans throughout the years. After citing Shea Stadium as "the NFL's poorest facilites for players and spectators alike," Hess announced plans to move to the Meadowlands prior to the 1984 season. As a result, during the last nine seasons, thousands of additional Jets fans have had the opportunity to watch NFL football in comfort and safety, in modern, clean surroundings, with proper facilities, adequate parking and good football sightlines.

In addition, Hess has continued to provide the Jets players and staff with outstanding facilities by building an ultra-modern locker room at the Meadowlands and by improving the Weeb Ewbank training complex at Hofstra University with a new AstroTurf field, a new locker room and weight room, and additional offices.

In 1983, Hess was an honored recipient of the Distinguished American Award at the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame dinner. He joined an impressive list of past winners including Vince Lombardi, Bob Hope, Jimmy Stewart, Bill Carpenter and Fr. Theodore Hesburgh.

Hess, the Chairman of the Board of the Amerada Hess Corporation, has been the sole owner of the Jets since 1984 and has been actively involved in the development of the club since acquiring part of the franchise in 1963.

STEVE GUTMAN, President

As president of the Jets Steve Gutman has been a key figure in the team's return to respectability in the ranks of professional sports while helping to set the path for the future of the NFL. Not only has he been instrumental in the Jets pursuit of veteran players, but he also played a vital role in negotiating the NFL's Collective Bargaining Agreement as a member of the NFL Management Council's Work Group.

In 1989, he and Leon Hess led the search which resulted in the hiring of Dick Steinberg as general manager. That, and many subsequent moves that followed, helped the Jets reach the playoffs in 1991, their first postseason appearance since 1986.

In the past two seasons, under the rules of the NFL's Collective Bargaining Agreement, the Jets have been one of the most aggressive teams in the free agent market, acquiring several veteran players including future Hall of Famers Ronnie Lott and Art Monk. The Jets also acquired Pro Bowl QB Boomer Esiason and 1993 team MVP Johnny Johnson through trades, thus using every available avenue in acquiring the players that will lead the Jets into the 1990's.

Gutman, who works closely with Hess, was named president on June 14, 1988. He has been with the Jets since 1977. His first 11 seasons were spent serving as the corporate treasurer-secretary and administrative manager. In that role he supervised the daily operation of the club and served on the Board of Directors. He also directed all the Jets fiscal operations including player contract negotiations, tickets and marketing. Gutman has added the responsibilities of the presidency while still directing all of the fiscal and daily operations of the club.

Gutman has been a respected figure around NFL circles. In 1991, he was appointed by Paul Tagliabue to the Management Council Work Group. He served as an economic consultant to the NFLMC during the 1982 collective bargaining sessions with the NFLPA. He is also a member of the players pension plan committee. He has also been involved in community and charity projects, and his efforts were recognized this year when the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation honored him as the recipient of the 65 Roses Award for his part in the Jets fight against CF.

Prior to joining the Jets in 1977, Gutman had extensive experience as a financial consultant in areas of securities, research, sales, underwriting, investment banking and management.

Gutman received his BS in accounting and MBA in corporate finance from New York University. He was born January 24, 1935 in the Bronx, NY. He and his wife Carol have three children, sons Fred and Rob and daughter Elise.

DICK STEINBERG, General Manager

After the 1992 season Dick Steinberg decided that his team was in need of veteran leadership. With the age of free agency on the horizon, he set out, using all avenues available to find the players that would lead the Jets into the 1990's.

He has been successful. In just two years he has added a strong corps of veterans through free agency, including future Hall of Famers Ronnie Lott and Art Monk, and through trades, acquiring Pro Bowl QB Boomer Esiason and 1993 team MVP Johnny Johnson. This past offseason, in addition to Monk, Steinberg acquired Pro Bowl P Brian Hansen and defensive stalwart Donald Evans via free agency.

"We have the commitment and the resources to improve through whatever avenues are available," said Steinberg. "Mr. Hess very badly wants the team to do well. The rules of the game have changed. You can no longer rely on just the draft to build your team. The advent of free agency has changed all that."

He has however, injected a strong dose of talent into the Jets nucleus of young players through the draft with players such as Mo Lewis, Rob Moore, Siupeli Malamala and Marvin Jones. And this year he plucked speedy All-America DB Aaron Glenn and a record-setting receiver in Ryan Yarborough from the college ranks.

With the infusion of veteran leadership, a growing nucleus of talented, young players and an energetic and experienced coaching staff led by Pete Carroll, Steinberg feels the Jets are headed in the right direction.

"We know what we're getting in Pete," said Steinberg. "He's a great motivator, a great teacher, he understands the entire picture and understands personnel. He will fit in well and give us continuity."

In his first full season with the team in 1990 the Jets had 23 players with one or fewer years of NFL experience. That team finished with a 6-10 record while having the lead at halftime in 11 games and after three quarters in seven games.

They learned from that experience and in 1991 they finished 2nd in the AFC East at 8-8 and made their first appearance in the playoffs in five years.

"With Dick running the show, they've become an aggressive team," said 49er president John McVay.

The Jets named Steinberg as vice president and general manager of the club on December 18, 1989 giving the former New England Patriots director of player development full control of the Jets' football operations.

"Dick Steinberg was named vice president and general manager of the Jets following extensive interviews with myself and president Steve Gutman which have led to our finding the best 'football' man to take full charge of our team's operations," said New York Jets owner Leon Hess. "Steinberg's authority and command of the football operations will be with full power to bring about those changes which are neccessary to rebuild the team."

"Dick has been given full authority to run the football operation," said Jets president Steve Gutman. "Given the opportunity to get a Dick Steinberg, someone of that caliber and reputation, we had to do it."

Steinberg came to New York not only highly regarded by the Jets, but also well respected by others in the NFL.

"I just think he's one of the better people we have in this business," said Giants general manager George Young. "Does he have the background, knowledge, instincts, guts, work ethic? Has he been with winning teams and does he have ideas that give him a chance to win? It's yes to all those things. Nobody is a sure thing, but I'll take my chances with a guy like him. Dick knows what it takes to win."

"Dick is a hard worker with a terrific eye for talent," said Chargers general manager Bobby Beathard. "I think he has a good feel about the whole picture—coaching and the strengths and weaknesses of a team. He's not a guy who thinks he's some hot number. He's kind of laid back and easy to get along with."

Steinberg, who has selected the talent for two Super Bowl teams—the Patriots of Super Bowl XX in 1986 and the Rams of Super Bowl XIV in 1980—is considered one of the most knowledgeable minds in the NFL and a top talent hunter. He came to the Jets after nine years with the New England Patriots as director of player development. At New England, Steinberg acquired Pro Bowlers Andre Tippett, Brian Holloway, Tony Collins, Irving Fryar and Fred Marion.

Steinberg originally left the Patriots as a scout (1972-76) to become director of college scouting for the Rams in June, 1976, He remained in that post until being promoted to the position of director of player personnel, a job he held until June, 1980. In his first draft with the Rams in 1977 his first four picks were Bob Brudzinski, Nolan Cromwell, Wendell Tyler and Vince Ferragamo, all key figures in their Super Bowl season.

After his four-year stay with the Rams, Steinberg joined then general manager Steve Rosenbloom as vice president of player personnel with New Orleans. Steinberg later resigned that position on January 20, 1981 before rejoining the Patriots

Regarding his philosophy on the draft Steinberg said, "If you get away from taking the best player on the board you are making a mistake. If you've got five good receivers, and you take another one, don't worry. That's been proven so many times. It comes back to haunt you. We don't mind stockpiling talent at all because the injury factor is so prevalent."

A native of Philadelphia, born August 9, 1935, Steinberg played football and majored in physical education and health at Temple University. In addition to serving a two-year tour of duty with th U.S. Army in France, Steinberg was a high school coach at Philadelphia's Roman Catholic High School (1960-61) and at Staunton (VA) Military Academy (1961-64). He then entered the collegiate coaching ranks as an assistant at Vanderbilt (1964-66) and Kansas State (1967-69)

Following a brief stint as a scout with the Dallas Cowboys in 1969, Steinberg spent two seasons as an assistant coach at Southern Mississippi (1970-71) before joing the Patriots as a personnel scout under then director of player personnel Bucko Kilroy. Steinberg served with the Patriots from 1972-76 before departing for the Rams.

PETE CARROLL: BORN TO COACH

By KEN ILCHUK

There was never any question he could be a successful coach. Many of the people who knew Pete Carroll when he was growing up in the San Francisco Bay area in the 1960s say so. As a player, he was a coach on the field. There was one game, though, when he might have raised some doubts.

The game was in the bag. The second-stringers were in at the end of the 4th quarter against Santa Rosa High School and all the Redwood High School Giants had to do was run out the clock. Carroll, the back up QB, looked to the sideline for the play from his coach, Bob Troppman.

"All I told him to do was hand the ball off," says Troppman now. "I told him we just had to run out the clock. I remember clear as day, the last thing I said to him when he went into the game was, 'Don't Pass!'"

That was easier said than done for the young QB, though. "I was in there with a bunch of guys that never played," says Carroll. "I couldn't just run the clock out. I couldn't do it to those guys. So when coach sent in the run play, I changed it to a pass and it worked. So we did it again on the next play."

"He was going well for a while there," added Troppman. "I don't recall how many passes he actually threw, but he had us inside the 20. We were going in. But he went back to the well once too often, I guess. That's when he threw the interception in the end zone."

"It turns out the guy ran it all the way back for a touchdown," said Carroll, who was a starter at receiver and defensive back. "But the worst part was I had a chance to stop him on the return and I missed the tackle. We still won the game, but I was in the doghouse."

As you can imagine, Troppman was not particularly happy with his young QB that day, but he says now that you had to expect something like that from Carroll.

"Pete was born to coach," he says. "His mind was always going. Even when he was playing Pop Warner and freshman football, he was the guy in the huddle drawing plays in the dirt. I guess that day was his coup de grace."

The most important moment in his coaching career came several years later when he got his first job. After finishing a stellar playing career at University of the Pacific, Carroll was invited to camp by the Hawaiians of the World Football League, but didn't make the team. He spent the next year selling roofing supplies until he got a call from his old college coach Chester Caddas.

"I loved Pete as a player," says Caddas, who is now coaching at Purdue. "He was a tremendous college player. He truly loved the game. He was intense and he was smart and he looked forward to every snap.

"One day I was on a recruiting trip in the bay area and I ran into Pete's parents," he continued. "When they mentioned to me that he might want to coach I told them I would hire him as a graduate assistant. All I could offer him was room and board and an embarrassingly low amount of money. But two days later he was in my office."

"When he invited me back I jumped on it right away," says Carroll. "I didn't really go into it to coach, but I didn't know what else to do, so I went and got my Masters degree. It just kind of snowballed from there."

After three seasons at Pacific he moved on, making stops at Arkansas (1977), Iowa State (1978), Ohio State (1979) and NC State (1980-82) where he was defensive coordinator, before returning to Pacific as offensive coordinator and assistant head coach in 1983.

"The funny thing about Pete's coaching career is that he didn't want to take the first step," says Caddas. "When he got the call from Arkansas, he didn't want to go. I told him he had to go. Lou Holtz was there at the time, and he was big. I made a bet with Pete that he'd be coaching in the Rose Bowl someday soon if he went."

After one season with Holtz at Arkansas, Carroll went to coach with Earle Bruce at Iowa State. He followed him to Ohio State the following year and a few months later was coaching the Buckeyes defensive backs in the Rose Bowl.

"I knew that once he committed himself 100 percent he would make a great coach," added Caddas. "He had an idea every 30 seconds. He also had great knowledge of the technical aspects of the game, on both sides of the ball. But most importantly, the players liked him. He was honest and upbeat. Whatever Pete tells you, you can go to the bank with. I think players appreciate that."

"Once I started at Arkansas I was captured by big time college football," says Carroll. "There were some great coaches on that staff. Lou Holtz, obviously, and then there was Beck (Jets offensive line coach Larry Beightol), Don Breaux (Jets tight ends coach) and Monte Kiffin (former Jets and current Vikings linebackers coach). Monte made it happen. He inspired me to adjust my expectations higher."

In 1984, Carroll got his first NFL job coaching the defensive backs with the Buffalo Bills. That season ended with many of the members of that staff being fired. Then he met Bud Grant, by phone.

"There was an opening in Minnesota," says Carroll. "I had been calling a friend of mine there (Andy McDonald) to see if I had a chance, but nothing was certain. I had interviews scheduled at California and Stanford, but I wanted to stay in the NFL if I could.

"On my way out to California, I had a connecting flight in Chicago. I decided to make a call to the Vikings office to talk to Andy once more. I told the receptionist who I was and she told me that Bud was on the phone with my wife Glena. She put me on hold and the next thing I know, Bud Grant is on the phone. He told me to get on the next flight to Minnesota and I said, 'You got it.' Three hours later I was in Minnesota and interviewed for the job the next day."

He only coached with Grant for one season, but it was the greatest learning experience Carroll had as a coach. To this day, Carroll credits Grant with much of his coaching philosophy.

"Bud Grant was the most impressive guy I have ever been around," says Carroll. "He really is an extraordinary person.

"We only coached together for one year, but he had a tremendous influence on me and I consulted with him regularly, (Grant is still a consultant to the Vikings)" he continued. "Bud taught me how to deal with coaches and players, and how he made the decisions you have to make as a coach. I just liked the way he did things."

"Pete has a lot of the intangibles that most good coaches have," says Grant. "He has a good philosophy of the game, he teaches good technical skills and he understands the abilities of his players. He has an interest in every part of the game of football. He was constantly in my office asking why I did this, or how come I decided on that, or how would you handle this? I think that has made him a better coach."

Another source of influence for Carroll came from a person very familiar to Jets fans. Quarterback coach Walt Harris, who recruited Pete (the first player he ever signed) off of home movies, was Carroll's position coach in college and was instrumental in his coaching development.

"Walt was tough and demanding in all areas," says Carroll. "He taught me how to approach the game. He was also very demanding when it came to the technical side of 'ball'. He was very particular about doing things the right way. He brought your attention to the importance of detail. These are all things that are instilled in my coaching now."

The things Carroll has to think about now have a lot more to do with managing a team than with x's and o's. His main responsibility is to see that the Jets are running on all cylinders.

"Whether you're talking about coaches or players, the important thing is to define roles for everyone. Find the best they have to offer and structure your system so that they are able to perform at their highest level, do what they do best. Then, in order to progress, you must challenge and motivate them to expand those roles. You create a mold and try to get them to grow out of the mold."

Carroll knows his coaches are an important part of developing that mold.

"I believe in creating an environment where people can express their views and opinions. People should be secure in their ideas and not be afraid to be shot down. Coaches should be given the reins and have freedom to work within the system we've established. Put them in a situation where they can best express their talents.

"As far as hiring a staff, it's important to hire people with a great work ethic, who are competitive, competent and can perform at a high level. I think it's important to hire people you know a lot about, and that comes mostly from personal experience, though not always" says Carroll. "As the head coach I need people who can relate to me, and people who can live with me. That's not always the easiest thing to do. We need to bring out the best in each other."

Much has been made of Carroll's youthful enthusiasm and seemingly boundless energy. He has been known to spend post-practice sessions in two-hand touch football games and lunch hours playing basketball. He has canceled training camp classroom sessions to take his defensive unit bowling, or to challenge them in a home run hitting contest, or a three-point shooting contest. He has even used computer football games to get his point across in meetings.

"One thing Pete has always had is an ability to deal with people," says Caddas. "I think people enjoy his enthusiasm. He's always upbeat, but he's never out of control. I don't think I've ever seen him down."

"Everything he's ever done, he's always hustled at it, especially sports," says Jim Carroll, Pete's dad. "Peter has always been an athlete. He never stopped. With all the radical behavior going on in the Bay Area when he was growing up, he never got involved because he was so wrapped up in sports. He was always on the go. Whatever he was doing, he enjoyed it as much as he could."

"That's just the way I like living," explains Carroll, 43. "I like to have fun, and if something's not fun, make it fun. I like to enjoy life, and I've incorporated that into my work. The game has always been fun for me. It becomes work when you're losing. That's when you get down. But the essence of coaching for me has always been being able to go out on the field and play catch."

To the people who have seen Carroll grow into an NFL head coach, the essence of his success has been a willingness to work hard, his understanding of the game, his ability to deal with people and his natural ability as a leader and a teacher.

"Peter's been coaching since he was in high school when he worked at his coach's football camp," said Jim Carroll. "I've always thought of him as a teacher-leader type."

"I always said Pete was destined to be a football coach," said Troppman. "He was always off someplace working out new drills. He's really an ingenious type of guy. He's always been an innovator, always a step ahead."

"The thing that will help Pete the most as a head coach is his ability to see the whole picture," says Grant. "Some head coaches don't have that ability to be able to stand in the middle of a practice field and know everything that's going on. And he's secure enough in his knowledge and his ability to take what he learns on the practice field and use it to make the tough decisions and stand by them. Pete has all of that and more."

"For the longest time, being a head coach wasn't that big a deal to me," says Carroll. "But in recent years when I saw that the opportunity might arise, I realized it could become a possibility.

"I don't like to lose anything. Not a game in the yard, or a game on the court, or a Jets game. I'm approaching this job with a great sense of urgency, for that reason. I've been given my chance and I plan to make the most of it."

COACHING CONNECTIONS

Although there are several new faces on the Jets coaching staff, the Jets coaches are hardly strangers. Nine of the 12 coaches on the current staff have coached together at some point in their careers.

The University of the Pacific has been the meeting place for several of the coaches. Head coach Pete Carroll and defensive coordinator Greg Robinson played for the Tigers in 1971-72 and were coached by quarterbacks coach Walt Harris. Carroll and Robinson also coached there from 1974-76. In 1983, Carroll returned as the assistant head coach for the Tigers and had special teams coach Brad Seely and defensive backs coach Ed Donatell on the staff.

Three Jets coaches made coaching stops at Arkansas. Carroll, tight ends coach Don Breaux and offensive line coach Larry Beightol were there in 1977. Breaux and Beightol stayed on in 1978. In 1979 Beightol left to become head coach at Louisiana Tech, but returned to Arkansas and reunited with Breaux for one more season in 1980.

Carroll and Robinson hooked up again at North Carolina State in 1980-81. When Robinson left in 1982, Seely joined the Wolfpack staff where he coached with Carroll for one additional season.

Additionally, offensive coordinator Ray Sherman and Harris coached at California in 1975, and Robinson coached with defensive line coach Larry Coyer at UCLA from 1987-89.

All totalled, the Jets staff has 254 years of combined coaching experience. Currently Jets coaches have graced the staffs of 39 different college teams and 16 professional teams (14 NFL, 2 USFL).

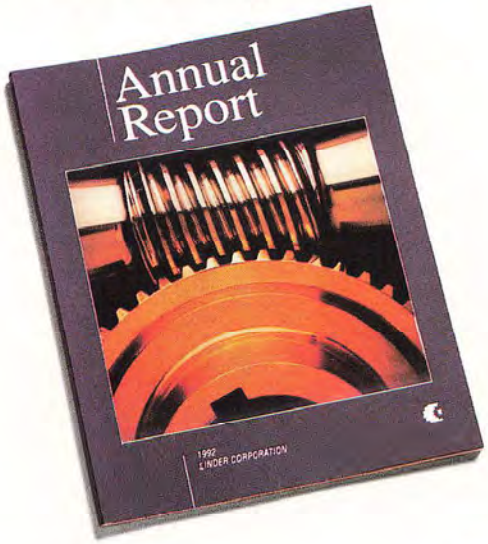
XEROX

Some documents improve your image once a year.

Some documents improve your image every day.



Annual reports that tell you how a company runs are almost always in color. But the documents that run those companies are hardly ever in color.

Customers told us they found color too expensive, too hard to use, and too time consuming. We listened, and put together an unprecedented range of color products. Each designed to give you the most intelligent way to use color to make more effective documents more efficiently.

Intelligent color means faster color. So we made the Xerox 5775 Digital Color Copier/Printer 50% faster than the leading competitor. It means flexibility. So the Xerox 4700 Color Document Printer lets you print and collate black and white and color documents on a single networked printer.

What's more, the Xerox 4850 HighLight Color Printer gives you an easy way to add color to variable data at 50 pages per minute. In fact, the intelligent use of color on invoices helped a major publisher accelerate cash flow by 150%.

It's just one of the many ways intelligent color can make you more effective every day. To learn more, call us at 1-800-TEAM-XRX, ext. 761.

The New York Jets

Today there is hope for people who suffer from inherited blinding diseases like retinitis pigmentosa, macular degeneration, and Usher syndrome. Intensive research funded by the RP Foundation is underway around the world to find the causes and a cure.

Join our team and take a shot against blindness by supporting research of the RP Foundation. Please help us fight against blindness.

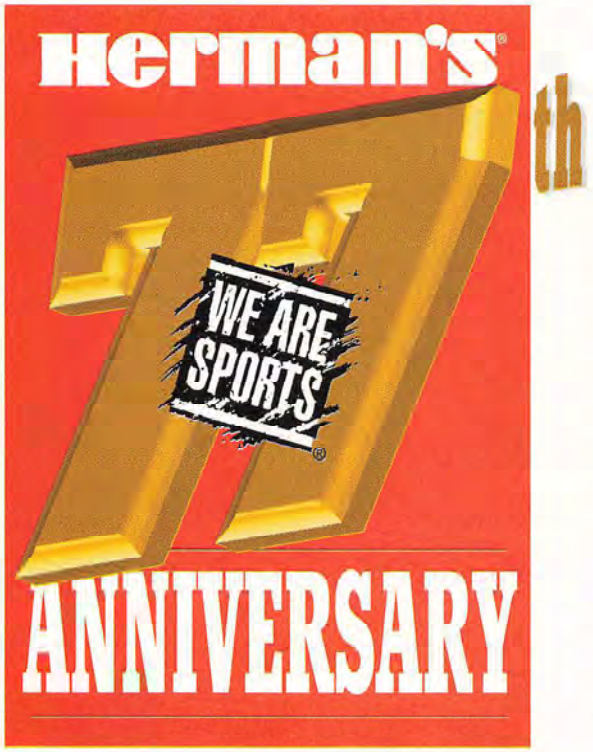
The Jets And Herman's: Two Of Our Longest Running Sports Traditions.



After 77 years as America's sports leader, Herman's has come to know what you really want in a sporting goods store: the top name brands, the guaranteed best prices and the professional equipment service you'd expect from the northeast's leading sporting goods team.

RINGTHEBELL77 on Archive.org

HERE'S WHAT'S KEPT HERMAN'S ON TOP FOR 77 YEARS...AND COUNTING!

Name Brands You Know.

Nike, Reebok, Adidas, Asics, Apex, Speedo, Spalding, Wilson, Dunlop, Prince, Rawlings, Pro Kennex, Ektelon, Head, Easton, Mizuno, Louisville Slugger, Jansport, Coleman, Pro Form, Weider, Starter, Russell Athletic and so many more. If you're looking for quality, look no further than your nearest Herman's store.

Unsurpassed Service.

Fast and dependable equipment services are available at all Herman's stores! From 24-hour tennis racket stringing and re-gripping to complete ski services, Herman's in-store staff of service technicians are not just thoroughly trained, but certified by many equipment manufacturers themselves!

That Extra Effort.

Home Delivery and Assembly of most heavy fitness equipment.
Extended Warranty available on most exercise items protects your investment even after the manufacturer's warranty runs out.
Best Price Guarantee: Herman's will match any competitor's advertised price on items we carry.

Best of luck this season to the New York Jets!

How Chemical helped Hartz Mountain spread its wings around the world.

Tom Seaver's Business Hall of Fame

Leonard Stern, Chairman and CEO, the Hartz Group, with sons Emanuel and Edward Stern.

"In 1926, a penniless young man named Max Stern set sail from his native Germany with 5,000 canaries from the Harz Mountains in Bavaria and a dream of making it in the land of opportunity.

On his arrival in New York, a customer directed Max to a bank where the manager spoke German. The bank let Max open an account without the minimum balance—and the pet and pet supply business Max called Hartz Mountain was born.

Headed since 1959 by Max's son Leonard, Hartz has blossomed into an empire of widely successful ventures in real estate, publishing and, of course, pet products.

And Leonard happily reports that his two sons are now a big part of the company's future. Emanuel is a senior manager in the real estate group, while Edward is a senior manager in the pet supply business.

Which explains why Hartz is still using the bank where Max made that first deposit.

'Chemical stayed with us when my father bought out his partner,' says Leonard. 'They helped finance our expansion. They arranged the financing to help us reacquire 25% of the pet products company after it had gone public. And they put up the money when we bought the Meadowlands.'

It's all a part of Chemical's enduring commitment to growing businesses and the people who own them—a commitment that's made its relationship managers number one in business house calls, and made Chemical the leading bank for business in the tri-state area.

The Stern family knows how to aim for the top. That's why they're in Tom Seaver's Business Hall of Fame.

Because to make it in this town, you gotta have a dream. And you gotta have a bank that shares it."
